INSPIRATIONS

Everyone

has their own story.

It takes the community
to not drop the ball.

It's interesting how other people see

you

compared to how
you see yourself.

There can't be an absolute

to your word.

There's different levels to trust.

Offense
is not a negative thing.

Part of building trust is understanding the person and your

authentic self

coupled with communication.

The great hindrance
for wanting to move forward in a relationship...

pride and ego.

The center of pride and ego is

offense.

Our perspective is formed by our experiences.

You need

truth

and ownership
to get trust.

Your offense

is not my offense.

Your emotions are an indicator like a check engine light letting you know something is going on with you and the longer you allow that light to be on the more expensive it is to repair.

Repairing
is worth the journey.

Steps to repair:
Truth
Ownership
Decision

Wording is important
“I take ownership”.

Release

control of the outcome.

God

is simple.

You have permission

to be the person you want to be.

What is Fear
costing you?

Faith

is a daily ebb and flow.
